

General Disclaimer

The information contained in this website is for general information purposes only. The information is provided by the Northside Community Law Centre and while we endeavour to keep the information up to date and correct, we make no guarantees or warranties of any kind, express or implied, about the completeness, accuracy, reliability, suitability or availability with respect to the website or the information or services contained on the website for any purpose. We do not accept any liability arising from any errors or omissions.

This case summary should not be treated as legal advice. You should not rely on any information contained on the website in relation to a specific issue or decision without taking legal or other advice from an appropriately qualified professional adviser.

The contents of this website, including these Terms and Conditions of Use, any information contained on this Website and our Privacy Statement are subject to change and to being updated without notice from time to time.

READ THIS IF YOU ARE LESS THAN 18 YEARS OF AGE

If you are a minor and visit the website of the Northside Community Law Centre please do not submit any personal information of yours or your family without the permission of your parents or guardians. If they agree, you can receive information and be one of our members.

Copyright

Material contained on the Northside Community Law Centre website is the property of the Northside Community Law Centre. It may be downloaded to file or printed for information and personal use only and it can never be used for commercial use or be transferred for information purposes. Where this material is being issued to others, the source including URL and copyright status must be acknowledged. Material contained on the Northside Community Law Centre website should not be altered and must remain in its original format.

Privacy policy

Protecting our client's privacy is important to us. We collect, store and use the information our clients provide us; once clients have sent us their information they are deemed to have read and accepted this statement.

We may use the information our clients have given us to contact them, for product administration and for customer research. Our team at the Northside Community Law centre has created a Casebase in our website; we simply summarize decisions so that we can better understand the Appeals process and help a greater number of clients. We never publish the cases unless we have obtained previous written consent from our clients. In our reports we never use personal information, addresses or names.

Our client's information is never disclosed to any party outside our office unless for the purpose of representation in Court or Tribunal. All our staff is conscious of their responsibility not to disclose any personal information to other persons. This responsibility remains even after a staff member leaves the employment of the Northside Community Law Centre.

In the event of a client being a member or an associate organization that provides us with a donation or an annual fee, we will use their information to manage their financial contributions and to send them regular information about our activities. We point out the data that are required and which are optional.